

Online Fly Tying Courses

The great thing about the internet is the wealth of information available there on next to everything concerning flyting. So much so that fly tying clubs often blame the internet for dropping numbers. I don't agree. The internet has still to find a way to serve beer and the ersatz experience of online interaction falls a long way short of the benefits that flow from belonging to a real community such as a fly tying club. That is not to deny the huge contribution the internet has made to fly tying knowledge. Hell I could not produce this newsletter were it not for the internet. And so it is that I recommend a series of fly tying courses offered online by THEFEATHERBENDER. This blog offers a series of courses from the very simple but nonetheless often forgotten "how to seat a hook in a vice" to various deer hair wrapping techniques and beyond. It is well worth a visit from both neophyte and expert fly tyer alike.
